From the Desk of Dr. Davis

Each month we host a prayer meeting for our PCS moms, praying for our students and faculty and walking through the year's theme passage together.

Last week we looked specifically at I Peter 1:14 and Peter's challenge to live in childlike obedience. What a joy it is for those of us who have the chance to speak truth and life into the lives of children. If they can learn to submit to authority while they are young, they will have a much easier time obeying God when they are older, and the consequences of disobedience are much more severe. Pray for our teachers and our families to persevere as they point our students to Christ and encourage them in holiness.

Fall Athletes Exceed Expectations

In the busyness of the Fall Trimester, our students have excelled in their academics as well as athletic extracurriculars.

Our cross country team did well this year, producing four All Conference athletes - Andrew Thomas, Lila Baxter, Nick LaSala, and Boston Dixon. In addition to their accomplishments, the PCS cross country team was recognized for outstanding good sportsmanship and encouragement of their team and other teams.

The middle school girls volleyball season was amazing too. They finished third in the conference this year. Our high school girls volleyball team persevered through many hard games and had a winning season.

We are so proud of our students who work hard on and off season!

PROVIDENCE
CLASSICAL SCHOOL OF ROCK HILL

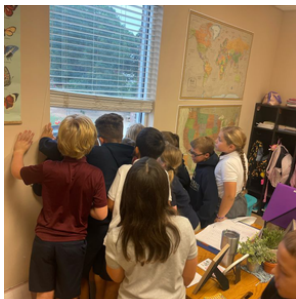

2nd graders testing out new swing set during P.E.

The Wait Is Over

After much praying, planning, and waiting, the new swing set has officially been installed. The need for new playground equipment was established last spring. Since then, PCS Administration has been working tirelessly to provide our students with this anticipated playground addition.

Students watching swing installation

Installation of these swings began on Sept. 27, and was the topic of conversation among the students and faculty as excavators and tractors were parked in the grassy lot.

The swings were ready for use on Oct. 10 and students have been cherishing their new favorite P.E. and recess pastime ever since.

We are abundantly grateful to PCS dad, Jimmy Hutto, and his company, Southeastern Industrial Inc., for the work they put in to make the swing installation a success. We are pleased to provide our students with this new equipment.

Teacher Spotlight: Amanda Reed

Born in Jacksonville, Florida and raised in Athens, Georgia, Amanda Reed has finally made her way to Providence Classical School, bringing with her valuable skills and assets from her 15 years of experience in the field of education.

“Teaching is my passion,” said Reed, “I teach to see the smiles, joy, and excitement as students grow confident in academics, socially, and spiritually.”

Reed reflected on the opportunities and experiences God has given her.

“Though this is my 10th year in christian education, this is my first year at Providence and my first year as a classical teacher,” said Reed.

When asked about the transition from the modern education style to the classical model, Reed said the PCS family and atmosphere made it seamless.

“Adjusting to Providence and the classical studies has been effortless due to the amazing administration, supportive parents, and our well-behaved students,” noted Reed.

Having grown up in church all her life, one of Reed’s favorite aspects about PCS is its implementation of the Christian and Biblical worldview both inside and outside of the classroom.

Amanda Reed

“I love how simple, but yet how vigorous classical education is, and how we are able to incorporate a Biblical worldview into our children’s studies,” said Reed.

Each year, PCS chooses a new theme verse to guide the school year. This year’s verse is 1 Peter 1:13-21.

As Reed uses this verse to disciple her class, she also has a personal favorite that has served as her “guiding light” for many years.

Matthew 6:33 says, “ Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.” As Reed follows the Lord, please lift her up in prayer throughout the rest of the school year.
